British Endorse Hitler's Speech, Premier Says

Says He Welcomes Passages Regarding Fuchrer's Desire for Mutual Confidence and Cooperation

'No Negotiations'

Prime Minister Also Says 'No Negotiations Are at Present Time' in View

London, Jan. 31. (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons and Adolf Hitler today that the British government and people fully shared the German chancellor's expressed desire for "mutual confidence and cooperation between our peoples."

Chamberlain immediately took the opportunity to praise Hitler's Reichstag speech of last night. "I welcome the passage in Hitler's speech yesterday regarding his desire for mutual confidence and cooperation between our two peoples."

"I should like to take this opportunity to repeat that these sentiments are fully shared by the government and people of this country."

Outside commons, women supporters of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Fascist and Spanish refugee women fought among themselves and with police.

Fascist women used rolled newspapers as weapons.

Chamberlain declared that "no negotiations are at the present time contemplated between the German and British governments."

He was replying to a question by opposition Laborite Arthur Henderson.

"I am glad to observe that discussions between various commercial matters have recently taken place between the representatives of industries in this country and in Germany," Chamberlain added.

Addressing the house, which resumed sessions today after a five-weeks year-end recess, Chamberlain launched immediately into a praise of Hitler's speech to the Reichstag yesterday.

The prime minister publicly welcomed the passage of Hitler's speech during question hour in the House of Commons before opening of a debate on Spain and foreign policy generally.

He answered "no" to Laborite Frederick Bellenger's question "Are any negotiations contemplated in the near future between the British and German governments?"

The premier rose to speak of his Rome visit January 11-14. He said the welcomes extended to him and Lord Halifax were "striking in their sincerity."

"Though we are unable to report that we (British and Italy) were in agreement on all points, we did achieve our purpose, since we had the conversations were over each side had a clearer insight into the other's standpoint."

"Signor Mussolini first and foremost made it clear that the policy of Italy was one of peace and that he would use his influence in favor of it if, at any time, the necessity arose."

"Italy," Chamberlain said, "desired peace from every point of view and not least for the general stability of Europe."

"Our hosts also made it clear that the Rome-Berlin axis was an essential point of Italian foreign policy."

Officials Expect Greater Rivalry in Americas' Trade

Commercial Experts Take Different View Than That Expressed by Hitler About Concern Over Conditions

Washington, Jan. 31. (AP)—Increased German competition with the United States for South American trade was expected by federal officials today to result from Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech.

Commercial experts disputed Hitler's contention that Nazi trade relations with Latin-American nations were no concern of the United States. They pointed out that Germany's trade is on a barter and artificial currency basis, and declared this in general has the effect of diminishing the total of international trade.

They contended also that Germany's foreign trade, being controlled by the Nazi government, was a means of exerting political influence and therefore could not help but be of concern to the United States in this hemisphere.

State department officials made no public comment on Hitler's address, which contained more references to the United States than he had made in previous speeches.

There is at present no prospect that the German and American ambassadors, now at home, will be permitted to return soon to their posts.

Although Hitler said "Germany wishes to live in peace and on friendly terms with all countries, including America," students of international affairs noted these four references to the United States:

That the present relations between the two nations suffered from a campaign of defamation conducted in this country "to serve obvious political and financial interests."

That "in certain democracies it is apparently one of the special prerogatives of political democratic life to cultivate an artificial hatred of the so-called totalitarian states."

That Germany's economic relations with Latin-America are her own business and not that of the United States.

That certain persons like Secretary of Interior Ickes are "apostles of war."

Man Is Sought

Pennsylvania Police Eager to Find Man Bitten Last Week by Rabid Dog

Philadelphia, Jan. 31. (AP)—Pennsylvania State Police were engaged today in a race against time to warn an unidentified man that a dog which bit him a week ago was infected with rabies.

The man drove away from a roadside grill at nearby Exton last Tuesday, apparently unconcerned about a wound which the dog inflicted on his hand.

The dog bit the daughter of the grill's owner, Larry Polite and yesterday reports on a laboratory test showed the dog to be infected. For Polite's daughter, the discovery came in time for effective treatment.

In most cases, physicians say, the Pasteur treatment is effective only if taken within 10 days after infection. With but three days left to warn the stranger, the police launched a widespread search for him. Their only tangible clue was that his car carried New Jersey license plates.

13 Defendants Pay $4,000 in Fines In County Court

Judge Traver Also Gives Jail Sentences but Suspends Service; Action Cleans Up Gambling Indictments

3 Cases Remain

Three Cases Are Left on Term's Criminal Calendar; 40 Dispositions in Period

Fines totaling $4,000 were imposed on 13 defendants Monday afternoon in County court by County Judge Frederick G. Traver and in addition jail sentences which were suspended were imposed.

The sentences cleaned up the gambling indictments which have been pending in court since last fall. All of the fines were paid to the clerk, except those imposed on James Carroll, Michael Goffredi and Raymond Ross, a total of $1,900 and these fines are to be paid by next Monday or the jail sentences will begin. Bail in these cases was continued until Monday next.

Disposition of the gambling charges Monday afternoon leaves but three criminal cases on the calendar for the term. Two involve the DePaola couple and the John Connell case is still open. In all 40 criminal cases have been disposed of at this term by District Attorney Cleon B. Murray.

The present criminal term was one of the heaviest in some time with a total of 49 cases on the calendar. Six of the cases have been moved over the term because of absence of witnesses or illness.

Three Are Sentenced

In addition to the gambling cases Judge Traver also sentenced Joseph Nagy, James Mitchell, both of Kingston, and John P. Ferguson of East Kingston, three lads who pleaded guilty last week to grand larceny. Indicted for robbery the lads were allowed to plead to the lesser crime.

Last June the three lads entered the Althers gas station at Barclay Heights, Saugerties, and after getting gas for their car asked for use of a cigarette machine in the place. When the attendant went inside with one of the youths he was threatened with what he thought was a gun and the cash register was rifled of a small sum of money. The gun later turned out to be some tool from the car. The trial was later returned for January and sheriff's office employees. All three were sentenced to Elmira State Reformatory.

The first of the gambling cases called was that of Anthony Aidala who said he was a salesman and pleaded guilty to the charge of bookmaking, a violation of Section 986, as charged in indictment No. 2523. Aidala had previously pleaded not guilty. On his plea of guilty Monday he was fined $200 and given three months in the county jail but the jail sentence was suspended during good behavior and Judge Traver said good behavior means keeping out of the gambling business.

Now Out of Business

Before Aidala was sentenced, District Attorney Murray stated that in the Aidala case, as in several associated cases, the defendants had closed their place and gone out of business since the charges were brought.

Judge Traver in imposing fines stated that the defendants were to remain in the county jail one day for each of $2 of the fine remaining unpaid. Aidala paid.

Benny Aidala, charged with the same violation, changed his former plea and was fined $200 and given a three months' suspended jail sentence.

Albert J. Partlan fared a bit more serious before the court because of former difficulties with the law. He was fined $200 and given six months' jail sentence which was suspended during good behavior. The fines were all paid.

John Durham changed a former not guilty plea to one of guilty to a violation of Section 970, being a common gambler, and a fine of $500 was imposed together with a six months' suspended jail sentence. Durham was warned to keep out of the gambling business in the future or the jail sentence would be put into effect. Suspension of the sentence was during good behavior and that included refraining from entering the gambling racket again.

Edward P. Decker and Leslie Decker, not related, also pleaded guilty to the charge of being common gamblers and fines of $100 each and three months in the county jail were suspended during good behavior. The jail sentences were suspended during good behavior.

Shale Alcon was also sentenced on his plea of guilty to a charge of being a common gambler. Alcon was fined $250 and because of prior difficulties was given six months in the county jail but the jail sentence was suspended.

Jaaper Martello pleading guilty to a violation of Section 973, keeping a gaming and betting establishment and bookmaking. He was fined $250 and given a

Enrollment Shows Gain Over Autumn Term at Schools

Exact Figures Will Not Be Available for Several Days; 1,682 Register Monday at Kingston High School

Registration at both the Kingston High School and the new Myron J. Michael School is slightly more than at the opening of the fall term. Exact figures are not available as yet at either school, since additional pupils are coming in and leaving during the next few days.

At the Kingston High School the attendance will be somewhat more than at the fall opening, the exact increase depending upon how many of the students completing their work in January may return for post-graduate work. Monday there were 1,682 registered and this number will probably increase slightly during the next few days. Principal Dumm said today. Approximately 50 students completed their prescribed work at the end of the mid-year term but several will remain in school until June. Fifty-one new students were sent to the high school from the Myron J. Michael School and 53 were received from out of town, making an increase in registration of 104 through beginning students.

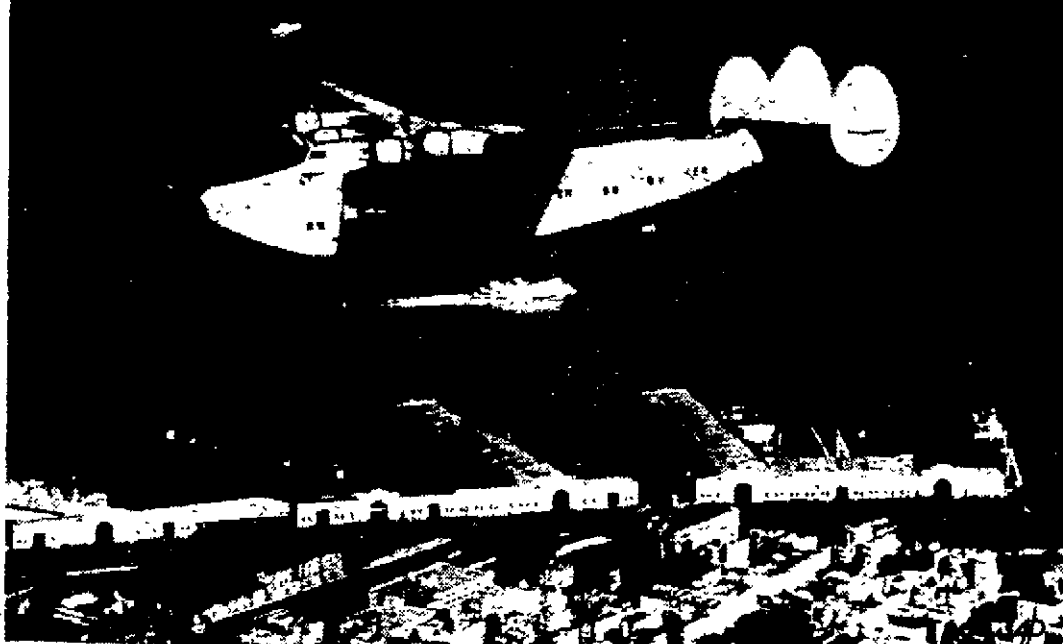

At the Myron J. Michael School Col. Frank L. Meagher, principal, reports a registration today of 693 but this number may be increased to slightly over 700 before the final term figures are available. Fifty-one students were sent from the Myron J. Michael School to the high school while 104 new students were registered from the grade schools.

At the opening of the fall term there were 653 students registered at the Myron J. Michael School.

The registration on Monday was 403 in the ninth grade and 294 in the eighth grade. Final figures will show slightly over 700 registered at the new school.

Giant Clipper Completes Part of "Shakedown" Flight

The hull of the huge new Pan-American Airways clipper is larger than the hull of Columbus' Santa Maria. The 74-passenger Boeing flying boat is shown flying over San Francisco's waterfront on completion of the first leg of a "shakedown" flight to Hongkong. In upper right background is Treasure Island, site of the coming Golden Gate exposition. Big as a fire-room house the ship completed a flight from Astoria, Ore., in routine manner.

Fire Losses Increase $65,186.62 for Year

Kingston's fire loss during 1938 amounted to $92,850.35, or an increase of $65,186.62 over 1937, according to the figures contained in the annual report of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy submitted to the Board of Fire Commissioners. During the year the department responded to 335 fire calls.

The increase last year over that of the preceding year was due to three large fires in Kingston, two of which were of suspicious origin, according to the fire chief.

During the past year the fire chief issued 307 building permits in Kingston and the total approximate estimate of cost was $35,310.00, a decrease of 151 permits and $45,372.00 in costs from 1937.

The fire chief's report follows: The year of 1938 shows an increase in the number of alarms

U. S. Auto Deaths Decline by 10,200

National Safety Council Says Report Greatest Improvement of Any Single Year

Chicago, Jan. 31. (AP)—The National Safety Council announced today that the nation's accidental deaths were reduced by 10,200 in 1938, the greatest improvement ever recorded in a single year.

Last year's fatalities totaled 35,000, the council said, the lowest aggregate since 1932 and a 10 per cent decline from the 1937 figure of 45,205. The greatest previous decrease was in 1929

Blizzard Spreads To Northeast Area

Deaths Number 29; Planes Grounded, Other Traffic at Standstill

(By The Associated Press)

Furious winds whipped snow and sleet over the northeastern section of the nation today while the Great Lakes region tried to shake off the paralysis of the worst blizzard in years.

A traffic crippling snowstorm moved eastward across New York state accompanied by zero temperatures. At the same time a northeast blizzard riding a 42 mile gale roared into New England.

Mariners reported 60 mile winds in Boston Harbor. Ships cast anchor rather than hazard mooring at piers. A light snow fell in New York city. In upstate New York the snowfall ranged up to 18 inches and many roads were blocked by 16 foot drifts.

At least 29 deaths were attributed to the storm in the northern tier of states east of the Mississippi. Three others were caused by rain and wind storms in the south. Eleven deaths, most of them caused by over-exertion, were reported in Chicago and suburbs. Five died in New England, four in Ohio, three in New York, and one in Wisconsin.

Planes between New York and Chicago were grounded. Highway traffic was halted in some areas.

Huge drifts were a common sight on scores of Chicago residential streets. The nation's second city experienced its most intensive snowfall on record yesterday when 18.9 inches virtually paralyzed activity.

Schools were reopened in Chicago today, but transportation was still crippled.

State police warned motorists to stay away from snow clogged highways in parts of southern Michigan, northern Indiana, and northern Illinois. Many small communities in southern Michigan

Capital Birthday Parties Highlight Paralysis Campaign

Washington, Jan. 31. (AP)—Far into this morning, dancers and diners over the nation carried on their celebration of President Roosevelt's 56th birthday anniversary. In the interest of stamping out infantile paralysis, a dozen movie, stage and radio actors who gathered in the White House just before last midnight to hear the President broadcast his thanks to celebrants at 25,000 parties, were honor guests at seven capital balls. They ended their complex schedule at 2 a. m., at a $25 "gold plate" hotel breakfast which several members of the Roosevelt family attended.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., the President's youngest son, bent his six-foot-four to whisper in the ear of Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, owner of the Hope diamond, as she took her place as hostess of a party of 26. Her guests included Secretary and Mrs. Woodring, Attorney General Murphy and Secretary Perkins.

New Taxation Falls Almost Entirely Upon Real Estate and Business; and 50 Per Cent Increase in Present Hard Liquor Tax Is Requested in Report to Legislature.

Emergency Levies Would Continue

Governor Predicts 33 Million Deficit at End of Year; Says He Insists Upon Balanced Budget by 1940.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 31. (AP)—New taxation, falling almost entirely upon real estate and business, was asked of New York's Legislature today to help finance a record-breaking 1939-1940 State budget of $411,682,122 recommended by Governor Lehman.

The Democratic chief executive also urged that present emergency levies be made permanent as he put the budget, roughly $18,200,000 higher than this year's appropriations, before the lawmakers and asked these new imposts:

A two-tenths of one per cent levy on the gross "turnover" of all business, including professional services, above $10,000 annually—estimated to yield $30,000,000.

A direct state tax on real estate of $1 for each $1,000 of valuation—expected to bring $26,000,000.

A 50 per cent increase in the present $1-a-gallon tax on hard liquors—source of an anticipated $3,000,000.

Predicts Deficit

Predicting a deficit of $33,147,272 at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30, attributable to the unemployment relief burden and revenue shrinkages in the wake of the 1937-1938 business recession, the Governor said "I insist upon a balanced budget" by 1940 and added:

"It must be clear that we cannot maintain a budget balance and a pay-as-you-go policy for relief without additional tax burdens."

The Governor recommended appropriation of $85,400,000 for home relief costs of which, however, only $60,000,000 would be used for the required reimbursement of localities for 40 per cent of their home relief expenditures. The remainder would be applied to the debt service expense incurred through bond issues for relief prior to 1937, when the pay-as-you-go policy of relief financing was adopted.

For Relief Needs

Of the $80,000,000 recommended for local reimbursements, $6,000,000 would be made "immediately available" to meet relief needs until the end of the present fiscal year. Thus, the appropriation for actual relief in 1939-1940 would be but slightly more than that for the current year.

"It is my hope that increased business activity will absorb a substantial number of men and women who are now on the home relief rolls," the Governor said. Then, asserting his belief that the amount he recommended would suffice to meet required cash relief expenditures in 1939-1940, he added:

"I wish to point out, however, that if business conditions do not continue to improve, or if the federal government does not assume its fair share of the burdens of unemployment relief, the cost that the state will be called upon to meet in 1940 will exceed the amount which I now recommend be made available."

The Governor conceded that his recommendations for new taxes will "please no taxpayer."

Defends Program

"Criticism may be brought against it," he said, "but this is true of any adequate program that may be formulated at this time. This particular program is the one that, in view of all circumstances, I consider best calculated to meet our problem."

Catholic Priest Says Nazis Growing More Unpopular in South America

Washington, Jan. 31. (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Maurice S. Sheehy of Catholic University, back from an 18,000-mile airplane tour of South America, said today Nazi Germany was experiencing a "growing unpopularity" in that continent.

"We underestimate the amount of Nazi propaganda there," he said, "but we also are inclined to overestimate its efficacy. South American people are too intelligent to be fooled by such a bombardment of broadcasts and literature."

"Even so, that doesn't justify our setting back and doing nothing."

Dr. Sheehy laughed off criticism of him and the Most Rev. James H. Ryan, Catholic Bishop of Omaha, by the newspaper of Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister.

Bondy Fines Burns $8,000; Suspends One-Year Sentence

Radio Comedian Pleads Guilty to Smuggling Indictments, Is Placed on Probation For Whole Year

New York, Jan. 31. (AP)—George Burns, radio comedian, was fined $8,000 and given a suspended sentence of one year and one day and placed on probation for one year by Federal Judge William Bondy today on his plea of guilty to two indictments charging the smuggling of jewelry into this country.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Joseph W. Delaney had recommended a $12,000 fine and the suspended sentence.

Burns pleaded guilty several weeks ago to the indictments in which he was named with Albert N. Chaperau, self-styled Nicaraguan consular official, and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer.

Both Chaperau and Mrs. Lauer have pleaded guilty also.

Other indictments in the case named Jack Benny, radio comedian, who has pleaded innocent. Benny's trial has been set for February 14.

Under the nine counts in the two indictments against him, Burns had faced a possible maximum sentence of 18 years imprisonment and fines totalling $45,000.

At the time Burns made his plea, Delaney asked consideration because the comedian had cooperated with the government in a wide investigation of smuggling.

Specifically, Burns was indicted for smuggling two bracelets and a ring valued by the government at $4,885.

Burns had already paid $9,770 in penalties to the custom authorities.

Burns was not accused of actually smuggling the jewelry into this country himself, but of abetting evasion of customs duties and of receiving, concealing and transporting the jewelry after it had been smuggled by others.

His attorneys said he had bought the jewelry and had "no purpose or intent to offend against the laws."

In addition to Burns and Jack Benny numerous other radio and screen celebrities were questioned in connection with the investigation, including Jack Pearl, the former "Baron Munchausen" of radio, and Wallace Ford, motion picture director.

A native of New York, Burns is the husband of Gracie Allen and serves as the foil in their radio act.

Chinese Strive To Save Youth

'Temporary Orphans' of War Cared for and Fed By National Bodies.

HANKOW.—"Here's a receipt for your son. Don't worry, we'll take him to a very safe place where there is no bombing. He will be fed well, we'll teach him to read and write and a trade. And when the war is over you present this receipt and you'll have him back."

Thus hundreds, even thousands, of Chinese boys and girls become "temporary orphans" for the duration of the war, to be cared for and fed by nation-wide organizations instead of left as a burden on already starving parents.

For the same war that makes tens of thousands of Chinese children homeless and robs them of whatever start in life they would have had in peace, paradoxically is providing many with better care and more favorable conditions than they normally would have had. The majority of the children left destitute by the war are the children of the poor.

Receive Expert Supervision.

Organizations have sprung up to collect these children from city and hamlet, and to send them in groups to new country homes in the interior, where they will receive expert attention. Not only this, but they will partake in the construction of the New China in hitherto unexploited territory.

Most of the children are not orphans in any but an economic sense. Their parents are living, but themselves penniless and homeless. They are in no position to support their children. That they should give them up to an organization which is able to look after them in safety is common sense, the parents realize.

Brought from within a 100-mile radius of Hankow, the children are fed, clothed (white blouse and blue overalls) and given a badge on which is written their name, age and group. Three photographs are taken—one for the association's file, one to be sent to the future camp or home in the interior and one for the godparents who undertake to pay their expenses at the home.

Cost Less Than $1 Monthly.

It costs about 85 cents a month to "adopt" a child in this way. In Chungking numerous plaques for the support of war orphans have been made by the rich. The former mayor of Chungking, Li Ken-shu, set the example by offering to support 20 of them for an indefinite period. A well-known banker is playing "godfather" to 40. There are cases where foreigners living abroad are supporting a hundred or more children. Thus far there is only one case reported in which the godparents actually adopted the child into the home.

As soon as transportation can be obtained groups of children set off with teachers for their new homes. Most of them are in Szechuen, Kwangsi, Kweichow and Kwangtung. A camp also is being prepared in northern Hupeh province within hiking distance of Hankow.

The children in these refugee camps are taught handicrafts, such as spinning, weaving, bamboo work, knitting and also gardening. In this way they become almost self-supporting.

The Rocky Mountains once were known as the Stone Mountains.

British Planes Are Found Too Fast for Television

LONDON.—Britain's 300 m. p. h. Hurricane fighter planes are too fast for television.

British air ministry and television experts made this discovery today when carrying out an experimental television broadcast from North Weald airbase, Kent.

It was hoped that as a squadron of Hurricane fighters flew across the airfield it would be possible to keep them centered in the picture so that viewers would get a clear image.

A fly-past of six Gladiator bi-planes, was televised successfully at 200 m. p. h. Then came the Hurricanes, and they were so fast that the camera men could not hope to keep them focused.

The conclusion reached by the air ministry and television experts afterwards was that the human element makes it almost impossible to televise airplanes flying faster than 250 m. p. h.

Teachers' Personalities

Judged on 'S' Traits

SPRINGFIELD, MO.—Modern schools have become so technological that the teacher's personality has been virtually eclipsed, and that is not desirable, says Dr. Merle Prunty.

Dr. Prunty is curriculum director at Stephens college, where many teachers have studied. Personally, he told the Southwest Missouri Teachers association, is more important than degrees in its "pertinent influence on the lives of boys and girls."

An effective personality for teachers, Dr. Prunty said, includes these "S" attributes: sense, sincerity, spirituality, simplicity, sympathy, scholarship, strength, self-control, serenity, sweetness, scientific organization, self-reliance, sportsmanship, salesmanship, and skill.

Early Inventors 'Outsiders'

The first effect of the patent laws was to give such heroes as Oliver Evans, McCormick, Morse, Bell, Westinghouse and Edison their chance. Most of these were "outsiders" in the sense that they were not identified with any industry. Thus Howe and Singer were not tailors when they invented their respective sewing machines; Whitney was a young teacher who thought of going into law when he invented the cotton gin; Fulton and Morse were artists; McCormick was a farmer, but his great rival, Hussey, was a sailor; Gatling, Maxim, nearly all the inventors of instruments for dealing death on a wholesale scale, were gentle civilians who had never smelled gunpowder.

The Earliest Sales Tax

A form of sales tax was levied by the federal government as early as 1794. In that year, at the instance of Alexander Hamilton, a tax was placed on property sold at auction. A similar tax had been imposed by Lord North in England to help meet the expenses of carrying on the war against the American colonies. In this country the levy produced little revenue and was repealed in 1800. It was revived for several years as an emergency measure during the War of 1812, but collections depended entirely on the conscience of the auctioneers and evasions were notorious.

You can pass the rare roast beef and black bottom pie anytime to Death Valley Scotty.

The rugged desert Midas of California, also known as Walter Scott, 62, is famed as a cook. He delights to gorge guests in his castle with roast fowl, cakes, and pastries which he turns out himself.

In city visits he varies his rare roast beef fare with fried oysters. For dessert, his favorite is black bottom pie—a layer affair of chocolate underneath, custard on top. Scotty eats sparingly—only twice a day.

Tomorrow: Booth Tarkington.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated! You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines. It's this mass that helps a bowel movement.

The common sense thing to do is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast may give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B<sub>1</sub>. All-Bran is not a drug, not a medicine. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Snow Equipment Busy in City

All of the city's snow removal equipment was called out for service this morning to remove the 4-inch fall of snow and steel of Sunday and Monday, which has clogged the streets. The snow plows were placed at work Monday afternoon, and worked all night.

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer placed a large force of men at work early this morning removing the snow from the business sections of the city.

Following a fall of several inches of snow, rain and hail fell, and with a drop in temperature this froze on top of the snow which was followed by another layer of snow Monday night.

Householders found it a difficult job shoveling off the sidewalks in front of their homes, and Monday afternoon they had no sooner got the walks cleared than another snow storm set in. As a result but few walks were found cleared this morning, and Monday afternoon they had no sooner got the walks cleared than another snow storm set in. ## $92,850 FIRE LOSS HERE

During 1938, Fire Chief Murphy reports that the total direct fire loss in this city was $92,850.35, an increase of $65,186.62 over 1937. During the past year the department responded to 385 fire calls.

The increase last year over that of the preceding year was due to three large fires here, two of which were of suspicious origin, the chief reports.

Fire loss is something in which every person in this country is directly interested. For fire does more than burn property, it destroys jobs and opportunities, increases our taxes, stalemates community progress and is a depressive factor in every phase of our economic life. Yet, according to the experts at least 80 per cent of all fires could be prevented, and easily prevented, simply through the exercise of caution buttressed with a little knowledge of hazards and how they may be eliminated.

It's too late now to do anything about last year's gigantic fire waste. But we have 11 months ahead in which to do something about this year's. No organization or group of organizations can do much toward controlling fire without the full cooperation of the public. Fire is an individual problem and it is up to each of us to help fight it as individuals in our homes and places of business.

BAREHEADED

Along about this time of year the fellows who refuse to wear hats attract attention. It still looks odd to most people, in the chillier parts of this country, to see anyone striding along bareheaded. They usually seem to be doing it with a sort of self-conscious pride, and they still get more or less good-natured kidding from the sofies who cling to hats or caps. Many think it's merely a he-man pose. But not so, says a convert.

"I've owned only three hats in my life," he confesses. "Why did I quit wearing 'em? Well, I got tired of leaving my hat in a theatre or someone's home and having to hunt it up again.

"Without a hat, life is simpler and cheaper. I have one less article to check. And then, I never have to worry about losing a hat in a windstorm. If you don't wear the darned thing, it doesn't blow off and you're freer. I feel, too, that I'm probably rendering a public service by providing entertainment as I walk through the streets." He never "catches cold," he says.

All this is well enough, if the hat industry can stand it. But most of us still have a notion that hats are not merely accidental or ornamental, that they serve at least some useful purpose. What, for instance, does the albatross do when it rains, with the water soaking his hair and running into his eyes and down the back of his neck?

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

In the last two or three years various American cities have been sending "exchange students" of high school age to Germany, and receiving German students as return guests. Lately the practice has been lapsing with the growth of hard feeling between the two countries. Now some of our school systems, while continuing the international exchange, are substituting England, Norway, Sweden and Mexico.

It is probably a wise thing to make such shifts, as long as American feeling against the Nazi government remains so strong. Visits to foreign schools and homes in such circumstances can only create mutual embarrassment and hypocrisy.

It is always valuable for young Americans to visit countries like England and Scandinavia, and to have their boys and girls visit here, because our civilizations are so near alike that we readily understand each other, and the differences merely add interest.

Mexico presents a somewhat different problem at present, but it is important for the two nations to know each other better.

MEXICAN FOLLY

Mexico seems to follow dictatorial precedent in establishing press censorship. It is not so complete yet as in various totalitarian countries, but is growing rapidly. A recent example is the expulsion from the country of Frank L. Kluckhohn, correspondent of the

New York Times, apparently for writing plainly about "Mexican political deals with Germany." Kluckhohn thinks it is the beginning of a general crack-down on American press correspondents.

William Lander, manager of the United Press Bureau, is said to have been told by the chief of the Official Press Bureau in Mexico City that "there is no interest outside of Mexico in Mexican deals with Germany." If the Mexican chief means that, he is 100 per cent wrong. And if his government insists on all news for outside countries coming exclusively from the official press bureau, it is making a big mistake.

The worst mistake of all is for President Cardenas to discard the friendly cooperation and active good will of our government and people, for any Old World connection whatever. The United States can do without Mexico more easily than Mexico can do without the United States. Mexico's destinies are inevitably bound up with her neighbors, and her biggest neighbor is potentially her best friend. Cardenas, an intelligent and well-meaning man, should be able to see this.

THIRTY-FIVE CENT MEALS

Governor W. L. O'Daniel of Texas brings dismay to state employees by announcing that he will not approve expense accounts listing more than 35 cents for meals. He is quite consistent about it. That is all he pays himself, he says, and if other office-holders don't know where to find the 35-cent places, he'll show them.

Food seems to be cheap in Texas. Plenty of office-holders in other states, especially in the North and East, will be wondering what they would do if the rule were applied to them. Probably they'd be dining at a service or sitting on a high stool at a quick-lunch counter. And, except when they were all tired out working for the public and needed a little extra care and provender, that probably wouldn't hurt them.

Seems as if you can't liquidate people by political purges in this country; it just invigorates 'em.

Hope dawns eternal, even in the insect breast. A friend tells of seeing a silkworm spinning in a rayon factory.

DECREASE FOOD TO REDUCE WEIGHT

A patient consulted a physician regarding his overweight as he had heard that overweight was a menace to health and dangerous to life. After an examination, the physician advised him that his heart, bloodvessels, and kidneys were normal so there was no reason why he should not reduce his weight by eating less food.

The patient then began to ask questions about the different kinds of overweight, some due to lack in the blood of the juice of the thyroid gland in the neck, another kind due to lack of juice of the pituitary gland situated on the floor of the skull, the other kinds due to inheriting the overweight tendency from one or both parents.

The physician realized that his patient had been studying the subject of overweight—obesity—and had made up his mind that his overweight condition was due to gland or other cause, and not to overeating. He, therefore, carefully pointed out that as his heart was beating at a normal rate—a little faster, if anything—it was not likely lack of thyroid juice that was causing the overweight. Further, that as his overweight was mostly on the abdomen and distributed evenly over other parts, it was not lack of pituitary juice that was to blame. Continuing, he showed why other glands and heredity were not at fault. Finally he said:

"Even if your overweight was due to some gland condition you would still have to reduce your food intake to reduce your weight. Gland extracts help to some extent when the particular gland is at fault, but every case of overweight, gland or non-gland, must reduce the food intake to get complete results. It is because the gland is not burning or using up the food that causes overweight; by eating less food there would be little, if any, left to be stored as fat. The only way to reduce your weight and not continue to eat the same amount of food is to take more exercise. It is not because you are eating more food that your weight is increasing but because you are taking less exercise as the years go by. Cut down by one-half on your starch and fat foods and by one-half on all liquids, and you will get down to normal weight in a few months."

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 77—Daniel S. Miller
The "Daniel S. Miller," better known to some of the present generation as the "Poughkeepsie," was another of the magnificent large steamboats of the Hudson river that went to her doom amid flames and clouds of smoke—and this only 29 years ago.

Lawrence and Foulks built the wooden hull of the "Daniel S. Miller" at Brooklyn in 1862 for service on the Hudson river. Her hull was 136 feet, six inches long, breadth of beam 24 feet, six inches, depth of hold 10 feet, four inches, gross tonnage $10, net tonnage 596. She was powered by a vertical beam engine with a cylinder diameter of 45 inches and a six foot stroke—the product of Metcher, Harrison, and Company of New York.

The first route of the "Daniel S. Miller" was between Styvessant and New York as a passenger and freight carrier. In 1864 a sister steamboat, the "John L. Hasbrouck," was built to run in line with the "Daniel S. Miller." Both of these vessels were powered with a beam engine built for a propeller—the first of such engines so constructed.

These two steamers ran on the Styvessant and New York route until 1867 when they were put on the Poughkeepsie and New York route, inaugurating the Poughkeepsie and New York Transportation Company. The "Daniel S. Miller" and the "John L. Hasbrouck" were in the service of this company until 1899 when they were purchased by the Central Hudson Steamboat Company of Newburgh. The new firm soon changed the names of both vessels; the "Daniel S. Miller" became the "Poughkeepsie" and the "John L. Hasbrouck" the "Marlborough."

On March 21, 1901, the "Poughkeepsie," formerly the "Daniel S. Miller," was on her way to New York on her regular trip. There was a dense fog and she ran ashore at Stony Point and sank. She was afterwards raised, repaired, and plied the waters of the Hudson in regular service until nine years later when the flames ravaged her, ending her career.

Sunday, June 26, 1910, marks the date of the end of the "Poughkeepsie." She had been taken off the New York and Rondout route of the Central Hudson Company and placed on the Poughkeepsie and New York route, due to the fruit season which meant increased business for the steamboat company. At 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the "Poughkeepsie" landed at Highland to take on a cargo of fruit. About five minutes after landing, dense smoke was seen pouring from the engine room of the steamboat and the passengers began to feel a bit uneasy over this unusual sight. The fire alarm was sounded. Miss Ethel Smith of Rondout, a passenger on the "Poughkeepsie," insisted upon returning to her stateroom to obtain her belongings, but the crew succeeded in persuading her to go ashore after some difficulty. Captain George Greenwood and the crew were unable to get the fire fighting apparatus working due to the headway which the fire had gained before it was discovered, and they were forced to flee from the burning vessel. Some of the crew had to jump overboard in order to save their lives, and these were picked up by the bridge tug "Annie." The "Annie" made fast to the burning vessel when it was ascertained that she was doomed, and towed her out into the river. The raging inferno that was once the "Poughkeepsie," flamed north with the tide to the opposite side of the river to the asylum dock at Poughkeepsie where in two hours she burned to the water's edge and sank.

The wreck of the "Poughkeepsie" was later raised and taken to Newburgh where she was broken up.

Hitler Has Made Effective Case Against Post-War Diplomacy and Against U. S. Isolationist Policies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1939)
Washington, Jan. 31—There are in the world no two men whose philosophies of life or government are more opposite than those of Adolf Hitler and Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, and yet a close reading of the speech delivered by the German Fuehrer corroborates in many particulars the attitude which the head of the Department of State here has been waging for the last five years against economic nationalism.

Whatever one may think of the Fuehrer—and he is wrong in assuming that the American press does not deal fairly with his utterances—there can be no doubt that he has made an effective case against post-war diplomacy of the allied powers and against the isolationist policies of the United States in relation to world peace. Not the slightest justification exists for the use of coercion and force or the weapons of inhumanity on the part of the German Nazis, but there will be many here who will agree that the basic causes which have given provocation to Nazism are not all inaccurately stated by the Hitler speech.

Thus, the seizure by the allies of the German colonial possessions and consequent exploitation under the "mandate" scheme was merely a counterpart of the same allied diplomacy which levied impossible reparations on the weakened German republic after the armistice.

When Hitler points out that the congested population of Germany needed an outlet for its exports and that access to raw materials was denied the German people, he made his meaning plain. For he now blames the allied policies for the "autarchy" or enforced self-sufficiency policy of Germany with all the collateral extremes derived from it. He says, in effect, that Germany had no choice but self-regimentation. He does not condone the excesses which followed. He implies that they were produced by the economic chaos which inflation of currency brought to Germany in the 1920's.

The Hitler address described very vividly the results of a world diplomacy which cuts off producing nations and denies them a trade outlet. There are in America many who believe in self-sufficiency. They are trying in every way to break down even the Hull Reciprocity Trade Agreements which represent only a modest attempt to build the total volume of world trade and increase the stability of world commerce.

The German leader asks Great Britain and France to ponder well the results of a nation hemmed in on all sides and obstructed in her attempt through colonial expansion to find an outlet for her excess of people needing employment. Will they agree to consider the German demand for the return of her colonies, or will the world compel Germany to adopt desperate measures to recover raw material areas at the expense of weaker neighbors? The Nazi chieftain insists that territorial rearrangements can come only through a process of reason or through a process of force, and he implies that between the armistices of 1918 and the day Hitler ascended to power there was opportunity for the process of reason to be exerted, but to no avail. Where Herr Hitler's thesis collapses, however, is that he assumes he could not have got even since the Munich pact of 1938, more through the process of reason than through the process of threatened force. Until his speech at Saarbruecken, last Autumn, there was a tendency here and elsewhere in world capitals to reexamine the problems of Germany in relation to the German colonial question with sympathy and understanding. The brutal attacks on innocent people, engendered by Nazi authority, alienated almost overnight what- ever instinct for re-examination there was developed by the Munich accord.

Unhappily, the world does not move forward by charges and countercharges and by the provocation of more hate and more bitterness. The horrors of war are as much feared and detested by a German people as by the peoples of France, Britain and America. Had there been in the speech before the Reichstag some evidence of a desire even now to follow the processes of reason, the rest of the world would now be grasping at the opportunity for the making of a durable peace. But the address is shot through with threats and implications of more force. Such a speech makes difficult the role of appeasement followed recently by Prime Minister Chamberlain. The speech, nevertheless, presents a challenge to the democracies. Herr Hitler has chosen a world forum in which to express his point of view. It is important that the debate be continued. Only from America can the reply come because objective reasoning is possible here, because we have no colonies acquired from the war spoils, and because belief in a world economy as a means of making autarchy unnecessary is still dominant.

President Roosevelt or Secretary Hull can make the answer for the world and enlighten peoples everywhere as to the merit or demerit of Hitler's argument. And if, in such an address, acknowledgment of the error of allied policy and a sincere profession of friendship for the German people were made, together with an offer of a practical plan to apply the processes of reason, the world would back up such a plea with more enthusiasm than it has ever backed up the winning of a military battle. For it would mean the beginning of the triumph of a democratic process of reason—open debate of the issues by spokesmen of governments.

Special Concert At Church Wednesday

ZAVEN MELIK

All preparations have taken place by the Young People's Fellowship of St. John's Episcopal Church for the gala-concert scheduled for Wednesday, 8:15, featuring Zaven Melik, bass-baritone.

Aside from the many interesting songs carefully selected for this occasion, Mr. Melik has been requested to portray in crayon life-size faces of the world's prominent men of the present day, in all probability such figures as Neville Chamberlain, Premier Daladier, General Franco, Benito Mussolini, Joseph Stalin, Herbert Hoover, John L. Lewis, Thomas E. Dewey, Alfred E. Smith, Adolph Hitler, and others. Those wishing to insure their seats in advance are asked to make reservations with John L. Sharot, president of the association, telephone 558-R, or at the rectory, 19 Green street.

Harry Malsenholder, Kingston's veteran accompanist will be at the piano. Walter Donnarumma who has a method of his own to unravel the poetry upon which the songs are based, will be the commentator.

Sorosis Meets

Sorosis met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Dumm this week. After a short business session, Mrs. Dumm presented the paper on "Recreational Opportunities," describing forms of recreation and hobbies, and pointing out that they are not just luxuries but necessities.

Mrs. Dumm said that supervised play for children helps as a health builder as well as being educational.

Fred Snyder of the Central Hudson showed movies illustrating the Hudson river summer vacationland in all its natural beauty, and color; also views of this section with its opportunities for winter sports and recreation.

The next meeting of Sorosis will be held Monday, February 6, at the home of Mrs. Julian Gifford, who will have the paper for the day.

County Club Women Endorse Radio Plan

Club women throughout Ulster county have endorsed wholeheartedly the plan for the radio broadcasting station in Kingston. At a meeting held last evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel, representatives of women's clubs signified their approval and listened to the plans as outlined by Mrs. Harry Parker Van Wageningen, who told of what club news could be broadcast. C. Ray Everett, who told of how the club's interests would be furthered and John McKenna, who told of the mechanical devices through which the information would be given.

Invitations have been sent to some 40 clubs in Ulster county inviting them to take part in the broadcast, and further the interests of the clubs. These clubs are asked to notify Mrs. Van Wageningen immediately if they plan to accept the proposals as speed is necessary. A list of the clubs who are backing the plan will aid greatly in the application for a broadcasting license.

Nursing Committee Plan Party
A card party will be held under the auspices of the Public Health Nursing committee of the town of Esopus in the Ulster Park Grange hall, February 16, at 8:30 p. m. The work of this committee is to cooperate with the public health officer and the public health nurses of this township. Committee members assist at the vaccination and toxoid clinics and at the monthly infants' and children's clinic. They also provide transportation for mothers and children to clinics. Raising funds is not the primary duty of the committee, but funds are needed to carry on some of the projects. During the past year money has been spent to purchase cod liver oil for needy children, equipment for infants' clinic, also material for obstetrical bundles used in home deliveries. Financial assistance has been given for much needed tonsillectomy cases. When the permanent quarters for the clinic are established more equipment and furniture will be needed. This will be the only appeal made to the public this year for funds. Tickets may be purchased in your community from the following members: Mrs. Raymond Howe, Miss Mary Polhemus, Mrs. William Schweigel, Mrs. J. Henry, Mrs. G. W. Ross.

Olympian Studies Holy Land

Book reviews on "Bedouin Life in Bible Lands," "The Spell of the Holy Land" and "The Syrian Christ" were given by Miss Mary Hale, Miss Winifred Sullivan and Miss Decker. Mrs. Arthur Cragin gave readings from "Jericho, the Jordan and Galilee" and Miss Decker discussed dramas which have their setting in the Holy Land, explaining most interestingly her experiences at the Passion Play in 1930. The next meeting of the club will be held February 6 at the home of Mrs. James J. Murphy.

Group Joins Protest
The Taxpayers Citizens Council of West Hurley passed a resolution today asking for a 25 per cent cut in the 1939 state budget, and joining in the state-wide citizen action for economy in the Empire State. All residents are asked to join in the movement which is sweeping the state—a veritable taxpayers' revolt against increased taxes.

NIGHT COUGHING CAN OFTEN BE PREVENTED
If your child often coughs at night because of even a slight cold—do this at bedtime: Thoroughly massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back. VapoRub's powerful vapors action tends to keep the air-passages clear, helping to maintain normal breathing through the nose, and so reducing mouth-breathing (the frequent cause of night coughing). Try Vicks VapoRub for yourself another reason why VapoRub is a family standby in more homes than all other medications of its kind put together.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

The Characters
 Peter Maltese: An adventurous Englishman.
 Petronella: His loyal young sister.

Yesterday, Peter gets the coveted job with the London Daily News and will return to England. Aunt Maisie cables Petrel to come with him.

Chapter 12
Facts, Facts, Facts

PETRONELLA received the cable on the following Monday. She was changing after tennis. Peter was going to take her to the Gym to dance. The "children's corner" would be collected there for Peter's farewell. Father was out. The rebellion kept him busy. Although life went on just the same in Rangoon, terrible things were happening in the green villages, and agitators were spreading discontent in the bazaar.

She opened the envelope. She cried out. Aunt Maisie was ill! For gripped her. "Don't let Aunt Maisie die!" The next moment she read the cable through again. She began to realize other possibilities. She faced all the things this recall meant. For the wording did not state that she was very seriously ill. She would be able to go home! Father could not refuse! She was suddenly filled with grateful thankfulness. Aunt Maisie would get better! She must! And she would forget her own unhappiness, in looking after her.

Petronella never wanted to endure suspense, like that of the last months, again. She had watched every post. Tony had not written. She had sent a subscription to Clara Horton, whose fund for White Russians, and the particulars of the camps she was establishing, were now receiving a good deal of publicity in the English papers. Very casually, she had mentioned that she had met Tony, and asked for news of him. Miss Horton had answered. She had not seen him since early December, when he had been very helpful to her. He had had fever, and was looking ill. She believed he must have left China. Petronella, and Peter, had thought the same. The Daily News published no more of his articles. Had he returned to England? Or might he arrive suddenly, unexpectedly, in Rangoon, to explain.

But he had not come. The moment Peter entered the bungalow, she handed him the cable. Even though the news was sobering, he, too, gave a shout of wonder.

"You'll sail with me! Poor old Maisie," he added dutifully. "But perhaps she's all right." "I think that, too. I do hope she is. I believe it is because I wrote to her."

His eyes met hers. "So we go together after all! That's the grand part of it!" Petronella walked to the window and leaned out.

"Yes, Peter, I shall hate leaving Burma, in some ways. I rather love it."

He dismissed the past, jerkily. "But it isn't our road."

To the west, the sky was aflame with sunset. The trees of Burma stood darkly etched against its glow.

"No, it isn't our road," he answered.

Father looked very lost, for a moment, when Peter told him the news. She felt sorry for him, and gaily, herself. He had done his best, as he understood it. It was not his fault, in his over anxiety for her future, that he had threatened her happiness. Perhaps, some day, she would see that she had been to blame more than she would now admit, for escaping in a way, she was very fond of him. Or rather she would have been, realized Petronella regretfully, had not the clash of their ideas continually frustrated the possibility of real friendship between them.

He took Maisie's cable and stared at it. There was no question, he agreed. Maisie had done a great deal for them both. It was Peter's duty to go home, and look after her. And if there was anyone particular, here, he hinted—well, they came home every few years, on leave!

Peter went to the telephone. He telephoned the shipping office, and reserved a second berth on the "Strand," sailing next Friday.

Very Sad

STANDING side by side on deck on March 29, they looked back across the same brown water which had welcomed them to Burma five months before, to the same flat, dark country on the skyline the round old dumpy, the little golden pagoda. The cheer of their riotous send off still rang in their ears. They were very sad.

"We've left a lot behind," said Peter.

"Youth," said Petrel, then felt rather melodramatic. But she meant it. Hereafter she would be young, but part of her mind and heart were old. He contradicted her. Girls talked and thought a lot of love, he said, and their first love affair.

The East hadn't got him, after all, thought Peter, triumphantly. He had expected, at one time, that he was destined to spend most of his life there. He had escaped, perhaps he would have escaped, any way. But it might not have been so comfortable. But for this small launch sister of his, he might have been patient. He had been very nearly broken. He had been very nearly taken that job up in the oil fields; he had played, seriously, with the idea of working his way to Sydney. He was damn glad he had waited.

They received a cable from Aunt Maisie as soon as they were at sea. It cheered them "Very much better. But continue journey. Love, Maisie."

"I wonder?" smiled Petronella. She looked at Peter. "I did write miserable letters." He guffawed in sudden delight. "Good old Maisie! Wonderful old Maisie!"

They found her in excellent health. Petronella hugged her in gratitude. The truth was never fully confessed. That would have been disloyal to their father. But Aunt Maisie did not contradict their obvious conclusion.

James came in to dinner their first evening at home. He had broadened. He had grown an annoyingly small fair moustache. His ears were very red, as he shook John Petronella's hands in his.

Since it was a very special occasion, Aunt Maisie lit candles, for dinner. James looked often at Petronella. He was puzzled. She had changed, he thought. She had become very charming. But she was quieter. She smoked. But it suited her to smoke. Was she the same, in essentials? He was afraid her quality must be impaired. Reading her letters, he had told himself that was what must be happening. She was out all the time. She was being spoiled.

But if this was so, why was he coming gradually to the conclusion that, even if she did need taking down a peg, she no longer knew how to set about it? He had imagined himself performing the disciplinary service for her, then re-admitting her into his grudging approval. But the change had removed her from him. Where there had been absolute frankness, there was now reserve in her eyes. Or was it sadness? Didn't it concern him at all? "Some man!" he thought, and felt a qualm of resentful jealousy.

Outwardly they were all very noisy, happy, and excited.

"As if you had been in prison, instead of having the time of your lives," remarked Maisie, crisply.

"It is such heaven to be back," sighed Petronella. "I nearly went crazy, when I first saw the white cliffs, and the little green fields."

Making His Start

THE following Monday, Peter went to town, saw Rowdon, and called up to tell them that he had started work. He was a reporter on the staff of the Daily News. He rented a divan room in South Kensington, only slightly larger than that which he had occupied during his car-selling interlude. For a month, Petronella felt it best to remain at home, in the "Forest House," amid its awakening trees.

Peter must make his start alone. Aunt Maisie's mythical illness was good reason for delaying the secretarial training she had decided to take.

She went, therefore, to several local dances, with James. She golfed with him at Handcross, and Haywards Heath. She rode. She walked alone. She read the Daily News, where reports were once again headed "By Anthony Lance, our Special Correspondent in Shanghai!"

Peter came home for brief, snatched weekends. He looked tired. He told them "It's a hard life, but I think it suits me. At least I hope it will, when I've got the hang of it. At present I get thoroughly bawled out." Petrel could not help noticing that he talked much too fast, that one subject had not the power to hold his attention for more than a few minutes, before he rushed on to something else. He was nervously over excited, she realized. London, on the verge of the depression, was a strained city, and he had caught the feeling of tension.

Aunt Maisie arranged for Petrel to start work at the "West End School of Commerce" at the beginning of the summer term.

"You'd better live in town, during the week, and look after Peter," she told her. "I've been thinking, it's too far for you to travel up and down. He's not getting proper meals. A little apartment for the two of you, with a venable woman to come in for an hour or so in the morning, will be a very sound scheme. I'll allow you thirty shillings a week, and you must tell me if it isn't enough."

Petronella was grateful, and delighted. "But Auntie, darling, why should you?"

Maisie grunted self-consciously. "Nonsense, it's nothing."

Peter was gladder than he admitted. He looked at his sister's companionless. When he made mistakes, which he seemed to do frequently, in his new work, he exaggerated their importance. Journalism was the one thing in which he wanted to excel. But keenness did not save him, apparently, from blundering. He had a great deal to learn. His imagination increased the seriousness of his errors, till he was often afraid that he was a failure. When Jodson smote his desk with his fist and shouted, "This isn't a report, it's libelous rubbish! You'll never be any damn good to me, Malone, until you learn to observe impersonally, until you get me the facts, facts, FACTS!"

Peter told Petronella, "I had a nightmare last night. Jodson was sitting on my chest, thumping my ribs and yelling, 'Give me facts, facts, FACTS!'"

Hollywood
Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Three movie stars gave a party the other day to announce their engagements—respectively to an assistant director, a little-known actor, and a non-professional.

The average fan wouldn't know the names of any of the starlets, nor of their fiancés. And it struck me as a perfect example of the romantic workings of the Hollywood caste system, which is predicated on fame rather than family, on earnings rather than social background.

And ridiculous and unnatural as the system is, strict adherence to it is still Hollywood's best happy-marriage insurance.

Three recent marital fiascos appear—from the outside at least—to have sprung from defiance of the system. Things looked rosy when Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable wed Jackie was no longer in the big chips, but didn't he have all that money from his boyhood stardom? Well, he's trying to find out in court about that now. Meanwhile, he's making peanuts if that, and Betty's making a regular salary, about $700 a week, and so—they've separated.

Bette Davis was practically a star when she married Harmon O. Nelson, Jr., her childhood sweetheart. "Ham" was doing all right with his orchestra, but he gave it up to try business in Hollywood. Bette's fame grew and grew. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

ANN SHERIDAN and Edward Norris were both minor numbers in the studios when they married. But the dice threw larger portions of fame to Ann, lesser ones to Eddie. Sequel, from that or other causes: divorce.

Feminine stars can keep caste when they marry producers or directors or equally prominent actors (Myrna Loy-Arthur Hornblow, Virginia Bruce-J. Walter Ruben, Joan Blondell-Dick Powell). And because such marriages don't have professional jealousies to buck, they generally last longer.

The Leonard Penns (Gladys George) get along all right, despite the fact that the wife gets the big billing in the family—but that's unusual. The Gene Raymond (Jeanette MacDonald) are up against a similar situation, and apparently making it behave.

NEXT to producers and directors, the best bets matrimonially for the glamour gals are non-pros, prominent in their own fields (Claudette Colbert-Dr. Joel Pressman, Irene Dunne-Dr. Francis Griffin). But movie agents are all right, too (Shirley Ross-Ken Dolan), and famous makeup men (Gloria Dickson-Perc Westmore), and wealthy oil men (June Knight-Arthur A. Cameron) and very successful writers (Luise Rainer-Clifford Odets).

 May lead to something more intense.

But, if they don't, or if they do,
 They're nice—and inexpensive,
 too.

Junior—Oh, I don't want to get cleaned up!

Mother—Junior, if you'll let me wash your face and neck you may go walking through the park with me this afternoon.

Junior—Yes, and then if it rains we can't go walking, and here I'll be with my neck and face all washed.

VIEWPOINTS . . . There is little that is bad in this world which does not contain something of good, if we can but see it. Some people complain because roses have thorns, other rejoice because thorns have roses. It all depends on the point of view.

Johnny—Father, how do you spell 'high'?

Father—H-i-g-h. Why do you want to know?

Johnny—Because I am writing a composition on high-ena.

This should come under the head of "This Year's Fashion Note."

Milliner—Pardon, Madame. This is the hat you just bought; that's the box you're wearing.

 Alligators can roar somewhat like lions.

Prospective Employer—Are you one of those who watch the clock?

Applicant (with dignity)—No sir! I have a wrist watch.

We may bellyache about hard times, we may sob about lack of business, but when we check up we will find that adversity has brought out the best in ourselves and our co-workers. Heroes are trained by jumping them over hurdles. Men, too, are built by hurdling obstacles. The heavy seas make the great sailors.

Co-ed (sympathetically)—Did you get hurt when you were on the eleven?

Player—No, it happened while the eleven were on me. In the bar room of a hotel in Milwaukee the following sign hangs:

You want credit?
 Me no give ---
 You get sore
 You want credit?
 I give.

 I go sore.
 Better you get sore.

Convocation of Bishops

Vatican City, Jan. 30 (AP)—Pope Pius XI today called all of Italy's bishops for an extraordinary address February 11, the 10th anniversary of the Lateran Treaty between the Vatican and the Italian state, a Vatican news service announced today. The convocation of all bishops of Italy, numbering more than 280, was described in Vatican circles as rare since the breach between the church and government 68 years ago which the treaty with its concordat healed.

There is just as much sense in digging for worms in a sand-bank, as there is in trying to convince a man of his error when he is so mad his lips quiver.

PEANUTS—POPCORN! Horace Lurd, Argentine sportsman, and Patricia Wilder, movie actress, had a circus in their own way, stringing peanuts at a Hollywood night club. Lurd is known among racing circles for his introduction of well known Argentine horses to American race tracks. One of these is "Ligarotti," owned by Bing Crosby and Lin Howard.

TOUCH OF A MASTER was needed to put Mrs. Vincent Astor's curls in place when this social leader of Manhattan prepared for her role in a costume dinner concert staged at the Waldorf for the benefit of the musicians emergency fund. Samuel L. M. Barlow, who also appeared in the cast, watches appreciatively while Waller, Mrs. Astor's hairdresser, lends to her locks.

OPPOSITION to Thomas Amle (above) as member of the interstate commerce commission is forecast in U. S. senate. After his name was offered by F.D.R., the Wisconsin legislature passed resolutions calling him unfit for the appointment.

AN ENGINE TOOK THE CURVE at Kansas City when a Kansas City-to-Denver passenger train rolled over in the yards and bent the rail in this fashion. No one was hurt.

KING'S ENGLISH is being mastered by Russian-born Mrs. Bryan Grover (above), now a student in a London night school. Mrs. Grover recently came from Russia after English engineer-husband had braved Soviet wrath to rejoin her.

HE'S STILL A KING to this young subject, his son, but Faustin E. Wirkus thinks he'd rather not go back to La Gonave as king. Back in 1926, some 12,000 Negroes on La Gonave, a Haiti dependency, chose him king after he'd been sent there for marine duty. He ruled three years. Now in New York he says: "I'm selling securities these days; it's tougher than being king."

BRITONS SAY that this is Premier Neville Chamberlain's "smile of satisfaction"—presumably over his peace plans.

BACKBONE OF U. S. AIR FORCE, these cadets at 2,300-acre Randolph field, Texas, the "West Point of the air," march toward their planes for a cross-country flight, wearing the parachutes that serve as cushions during flights. Most cadets are college graduates from 20 to 27 years old. Sixty-four instructors conduct the training period which is in three 4-month stages.

'BUND DEFENDS CONSTITUTION' declared Wilhelm Kunze (right), national public relations director for the German-American bund, at a Los Angeles meeting. He further described the group as a defender of "true democracy," and Herman Schwinn, (left), Pacific coast bund leader, charged a "bunch of aliens in Hollywood" with persecuting the bund in Los Angeles.

HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER were clasped by Gov. Robert T. Jones (left) of Arizona and Gov. Roman Yocupicio of Sonora, Mexico, shown at international border at Nogales, Ariz., and Nogales, Sonora. They exchanged expressions of good will and discussed plans for a highway as well as the 400th observance of the first trip into Arizona by a white man.

WITH A HEICH-DI HAYDN, the conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, rehearses before a mirror and holds his mouth in the Composer Haydn manner, preparatory to a concert "extraordinaire" in Boston. Bewigged Mr. Koussevitzky will impersonate Haydn—to whom he is said to bear a resemblance—and orchestra members will appear in 18th century finery.

USING THE SIT-DOWN TECHNIQUE, these British unemployed staged a "sit-down" demonstration on damp Oxford street, London, to call attention to their claims for increased winter relief. "Starved, protested, arrested," read many of the posters with which the men covered themselves while women paraded the sidewalks carrying similar signs.

IF HE LOST HIS HEAD it was in a good cause, decides Senorita Myriellina Bessas as she paints one of the masks to be used at the 181st annual Ponce de Leon carnival at Puerto Rico Feb. 9-21. Miss Bessas is queen of beauty at the carnival.

NEW TYPE LIFEBOAT shown in above model was designed by James D. Farlow (right) of the Ocean City, Md., coast guard station, and it has—as Mr. Farlow points out to Thomas T. Moore—a special towing gear and other safety features.

'PULL' aptly has tiny magnet developed by General Electric at Schenectady. It's able to lift 1,500 times its weight and is a "hot" magnet, being so hard it stands temperatures that cause other magnetic metals to peel as it unbends.

Conference Opens At Hotel; Women Hear Addresses

The two-day conference, "The Homemaker and Her Market," sponsored by the extension service of Ulster county and the New York State College of Home Economics, women's educational organizations, opened this morning at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Today and Wednesday morning the conference is open to representatives of women's organizations. Wednesday afternoon the public is invited. Cooperating in the conference are local producers and merchants.

Mrs. Lucille Williamson of the State College of Economics, discussion leader for the conference, opened the session this morning with an address on "Consumer Education for Family Spending."

Mrs. Williamson said that there are many things that go into the making of good and bad family living and that homemakers should understand the entire marketing system. Proper management is important and with preparation and study good family living conditions can be maintained. As an example she gave the result of a government study of what was spent for food and what they get for their money. When the groups were divided into high, medium and low cost and poor, adequate and excellent diets, it was found that there are all three kinds of diets at each level of cost.

Chester C. DuMont was the next speaker. He discussed "Producing and Selling Apples." He explained the steps in the care of the apple and meeting the necessary requirements. Some of the steps discussed by Mr. DuMont were sterilizing, pruning, spraying, picking, grading, storage. In mentioning spraying, Mr. DuMont stated that the government is now busy in research to develop other sprays to take the place of the arsenic. However, he mentioned that the farmer should be careful not to spray so much that he kills the fruit as the rainy season washes it off.

Apples are graded to meet the state requirements. No farmer tries to merely meet the requirements but always tries to better it.

Of particular interest to the consumer was the figures quoted by Mr. DuMont that about six per cent of the diet is fruit and vegetables. Apples contain vitamins A and C as well as pectin, which has a healthful effect on the digestion of foods. Mr. DuMont also told of how fruits are displayed in the stores to the disadvantage of the apples and how the fruit store dealers keep the apple prices too high. "They get more money in proportion to the number of apples they handle," he said.

Many are being worked out for the consumption of apples other than in the way of fresh fruit. Some of these are in syrup, dried apple sauce in bread and cider. There is need for education on the part of the consumer to know what apples to buy for what uses and need for education on the part of the retailer to know what apples to suggest to the purchaser who inquires.

"Milk to Meet the State Laws and the Consumer Demand" was the other subject discussed at the morning session by Charles Allen.

Mr. Allen stressed the fact that consumers should remember that the farm is a home as well as a place to do business. He reviewed the processes through which the milk passes from the time it is milked until the time it reaches the homemaker the following morning. Laws that must be met refer to inspection, tests, cleanliness, pasteurization and distribution.

From the consumer's viewpoint he mentioned the fact of milk on the back door step in time for breakfast, stating that he has to be up as early as 1 a. m. and often doesn't finish his work, especially on collection days, until 5 or 6 o'clock at night.

With the result of all this processing for which the housewife pays from 12 to 15 cents a quart, the dairyman receives only 5 1/2 cents a quart. This is due to the high cost of services.

The talks showed the consumers present that when they refuse a product which they really do not, they are harming the producer, who has to do more things and in turn raise the prices higher.

The afternoon sessions were devoted to retail services and costs with W. H. Wulp, L. H. Gypson, C. E. Wonderly, William Hardenbergh and Mrs. Roger H. Loughran taking part in the talks. The subjects covered were "Costs in a Retail Store," "Charge Accounts and Credit," "The Store of Goods," "Demands for Fashion" and "Store Solicitations."

The session Wednesday morning will open at 10 o'clock with lectures on consumer responsibilities. The afternoon session, which is open, will be "Government and the Consumer."

Financial and Commercial Stocks Opened Higher Monday

Following strength in foreign markets Monday, which had been influenced by forecasts that Hitler's speech would not be too bellicose, stocks on the New York Exchange opened higher and advanced their gains appreciably in the latter part of the session. Industrial issues showed a gain for the day of 2.77 points, to 141.56 in the Dow-Jones average; rails were up 0.83 point, to 23.37. Utilities dropped a bit, following the unsatisfactory TVA decision, but came back to close the day with a gain of 0.29 point, to 23.28.

The London market was particularly strong, with the Financial Times industrial average up 2.4 points. Paris closed strong in active trading. Amsterdam market was quiet, but strong.

Foreign financial exchanges, the only international market open during Hitler's speech, were encouraged by his lack of warlike threats. Sterling closed up and Dutch guilders jumped 37 points, following Hitler's denial that Germany had any designs upon Holland.

Developments affecting the utilities featured yesterday's domestic news. The Supreme Court decision in the action brought by 14 utility companies who sought to restrain competitive operations by the TVA appears to have decided the constitutionality of the act establishing the Tennessee Valley Authority, confining itself to a decision that the companies had no "standing to maintain the suit," because they could not show illegal competition and damages as the result of TVA operations. Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented from the opinion rendered by the other five judges, holding that the companies had a right to have the court decide the constitutional questions involved.

The other utility development was the action of the SEC in paying the way for the North American Co. to bring about first major corporate simplification under terms of the Utility Act. The action opens the way to a financing program necessary for a dissolution of the North American Edison Co., subsidiary of North American. The action of the SEC is viewed as forecasting a generally cooperative attitude on the part of the government agency toward utility simplification and integration problems.

Strength of all European markets before the start of dealings here, brokers said, apparently reflected the revival of peace hopes abroad in the wake of Hitler's milder than expected speech to the German Reichstag late yesterday.

In addition, the list was quick to re-echo the turn for the better in financial sentiment overseas as Prime Minister Chamberlain today addressed the house of commons and praised the seemingly conciliatory remarks of the fuhrer.

$45,000 Offered For Chichester Plant, Is Report

A prospective bid of $45,000 has been offered for the Schwarz-waelder furniture plant at Chichester, it was announced today following proceedings in New York yesterday.

Final disposition of the plant and its property holdings which include 43 dwellings, a store, church, recreation hall and warehouse along with the factory building, will be known before the end of the week. It was announced after the opening of the bids by Special Master Peter L. Olney, Jr.

All bids offered last week when the plant and property was put up for a bid at a liquidation sale, were rejected.

Creditors, it was reported, agreed to the bid of $45,000 if it was genuine and offered within the next two days.

In the event the bid is not accepted, or any of its terms not agreed to, the company will be adjudged bankrupt and its assets liquidated by a trustee to be appointed. The name of the bidder was not disclosed.

The Kingston Trust Co., reported to be the largest creditor at the hearing, was represented by former Senator Charles Walton.

Eight Hurt in Crash Ridgefield Park, N. J., Jan. 31 (AP)—Eight persons were hurt today when an interstate bus carrying 34 passengers skidded 100 feet along icy Route 6 and plunged down a 20-foot embankment. The bus, plunging down nine guard rails at the road side, landed on its side. Doctors said none was critically injured. Traffic congestion at the scene of the accident caused a number of minor collisions when drivers were forced to apply their brakes on the glassy highway. Many of those in the bus were en route to work at the Bendix aviation plant at Bendix.

Whitehead Is Serious Now

Chicago, Jan. 31 (AP)—John Henderson Whitehead, the large White Sox pitcher with the yep for pork chops, is ready to swap his healthy appetite for baseball stardom.

The 29-year-old Texan says he has the answer to the question of who is going to replace the ill-fated Monty Stratton, who lost a leg in a hunting accident near his Texas home late last year after winning 15 games and losing nine for Chicago during the 1938 season.

Word comes to Sox officials from Whitehead's home that he is determined to shave down his weight and fulfill the bright predictions made for him when he broke in four years ago.

"I know I've been a big disappointment to everybody so far," said Whitehead. "But this year I'm going to be different. I'm going to step in and take Monty Stratton's place as the No. 1 pitcher on the staff."

Stratton is making serious plans to resume his major league pitching career with an artificial leg. Whether he is able to pitch or not, club officials have assured him of a job with the club.

Kenneth Misner has taken an agency in the Prudential Insurance Co. He takes the place of Mr. Cook.

Mrs. A. Perry Loomis was a Shokan caller Saturday. Beatrice Shub, of Woodstock visited her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith.

One of the smallest turnouts of the season, due to the storm, saw the Comforters go down to defeat for the first time in 10 starts at the Y. M. C. A. last night and split their Church Basketball lead with St. Mary's, who won 26-12.

In the other contest, the Presbyterians defeated the Redeemers, 43-39, and the third one on the slate was a victory for Clinton Avenue when the First Dutch team failed to show up with the required number of players.

The first two quarters of the St. Mary's-Comforter game were everything that was expected of both teams. They were deadlocked nearly all the way. But at the beginning of the third frame, the Saints gradually drew away to an easy win.

The combination of Dykes and Rhymer failed to click, which was the main factor in the downfall of the Comforters. Johnny Gil-dy turned in the outstanding performance of the night for St. Mary's with 13 points. Had DeGraff was the best shot on the Comforter club, getting five points.

In bowing to the Saints, the Comforters suffered their first defeat after nine straight victories. Previous to last night the Wynkoop churchmen had not been defeated and were riding high in first place. Dropping the decision, the Comforters fell into a tie with St. Mary's.

The battle for fourth place between the Presbyterians and Redeemers saw the Presbys come out on top 43-39. The game was all Presbyterian for the first half, but in the third and fourth stanzas, Redeemers put on a rally that all but put the Presbyterians on the short end. However, the Presbys managed to hold them off and won fourth place honors in the league.

"Beans" Balt put on a brilliant performance for the Presbys by scoring 20 points and Al Bruce took high honors for the Redeemers with 15.

First Dutch failed to show up with the required number of men and forfeited to Clinton Avenue. The individual scores and standing of the clubs are as follows:

White Eagle Five Plays Glascoites In Game Tonight

Tonight at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue, the team of Frank Wojciechowski plays its regular weekly home game, facing the Italian-Americans from Glasco.

"We want to get back on the winning road," said Manager Wojciechowski, whose club bowed to Rosendale there Saturday, 27-21, "and plenty of action can be expected as my cagers toss that calfskin around tonight."

The Eagles will use their regulars, Buboltz, the Tatarszewski brothers, Coughlin, Janasiewicz, Tucker and Albright.

Glasco will pick its lineup from Murrelio, Wolvin, G. and W. Vordick and V. Imperato.

There will be a preliminary at 7:30. The main game is set for 9 o'clock. Dancing will follow.

Practice Control Says Mac Fayden

Bradenton, Fla., Jan. 31 (AP)—Danny MacFayden, a mainstay of the Boston Bees' veteran hurling staff, packed into two words today his advice to rookie pitchers: "Practice control."

"The average young pitcher coming up needs control above all else," explained Danny, who speaks with the wisdom acquired through 12 years of play in the American and National leagues.

But MacFayden, here for a month of golf and swimming before the Boston training camp opens, was eager to talk about the Bees.

"If we get the same kind of fine pitching we've had the last two years, along with the batting strength Al Simmons, Buddy Hest and Al Todd, all newcomers, should be right up there battling for second place," he declared.

Bettina Gets Title Chance Against Fox on Friday Night

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—Jimmy Grippo, the accomplished magician who manages Melio Bettina, has performed his most amazing feat. His charge will fight the aged Tiger Jack Fox for the light-heavyweight championship of the world—in New York at least—Friday night in Madison Square Garden.

New York, Jan. 31 (AP)—After a week's inaction the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball Conference gets to work again tonight with Temple meeting Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh.

The Eastern Intercollegiate League will be quiet until Saturday when Yale meets Dartmouth. A victory tonight will boost Temple to an even break in four conference games and put the Owls in undisputed possession of third place behind Carnegie Tech, the leaders, and Georgetown.

Pittsburgh can take over the same rung by winning. The Panthers have lost their only league start, that to Tech by a five-point margin.

As usual Monday night's big games were few and far between. Georgetown, one of the powers of the conference, was licked by Fordham, 43 to 34, while Catholic U. triumphed Loyola of Baltimore, 41 to 35 in two of the more important games.

Russell Defeats Brooks by 100-54

Maine Russell 100, Dave Brooks 54. That was the score in the city tournament game at Nick's last night.

Russell, one of the most natural pocket billiard players in this vicinity seemed to get over his "tournament jitters" and played an exceptionally fine game to overcome the "boy wonder" Brooks in an easy manner. Maine had a high run of 17 and Brooks, who has dropped two successive matches after an impressive win in his first match, had a high of 15.

There will be no game tonight. Wednesday's game will bring up Mike Carpio and Bob East.

All Seats Reserved Saturday For Rangers vs. Crystal Beasts

Reserved seats are now on sale for the special exhibition match between the New York Rangers, former American-National League champions, and the Crystal Beauty Shoppe Saturday night at the Central Recreation alleys at 9 o'clock. All seats will be reserved for the occasion.

The Rangers, formerly known as the Capitol Alley Five, appeared here last season and gave a brilliant exhibition at Emerick's alleys.

Managed by George Woodward, secretary of the New York Bowling Association, the Rangers feature some renowned kelpers as Marty Cassio, Felix Gelhausen, Frank Seaton, Nick Zazzali and Alex Murzinski.

Rangers Hold Records

Rangers hold the all time

American-National League records of 3412 and 1215 established two years ago when they won the championship. Last season the Rangers won the Pabst Blue Ribbons and then lost the roll-off.

The Rangers rolled 3069 here last year, but Manager Woodward writes that his platoon maulers will be out to eclipse the 3108 rolled by Fisher Body at the Central Alley dedication ceremonies.

Gelhausen, Seaton and Cassio are among the nation's finest 5-man bowlers and average about 209 as a group. The team average for the group last year was 1016 on all conditions as follows:

Don't Bore Friends With Dull Letters

Know How to Write With Charm To think that Dot spent hours on the letter that's boring Hal to death—when in half the time she could have dashed off one that would make him say: "There's a swell girl!"

No trick to letter writing when you know how to start off with a bang. Don't begin dolefully, "I haven't any news. Nothing over happens here." Your friends don't expect world-shaking news—just honey items about you, what you're doing. You start, "Well, this is Jane, writing by gracious permission of Topsy, the Puke. I just hauled the rascal off the lawn where he was howling at a Great Dane, but all's quiet for the moment."

No danger of boring if your style's breezy—descriptive. Don't write a prim, "We had a nice time." Be natural, lively with "The party was the gayest yet, madly hilarious."

Appearances count too. White paper is always correct, so are pale tints of blue or gray. But never paper with ruled lines. Write the gay pleasing letters that win friends. Our 32-page booklet gives pointers on correct forms, vocabulary, "picture words," errors in English to avoid. Sample letters for all occasions, easy to adapt. Send 10c in coin for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 605 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Mayor's Narrow Escape Prompts Another Request

Last year Mayor C. J. Heiseleman took up with the state highway department the matter of extending the present four-lane concrete highway through Kingston and West Hurley through to Oneonta. At that time the mayor was informed that traffic did not warrant the building of a four-strip road at the present time.

January 30, 1939. Capt. Arthur W. Brandt, Commissioner of Highways, Albany, N. Y.

My dear Commissioner: Last night, while returning from Phoenixia, I almost gave a new name to one of the curves on Route 25 a short distance west of the Woodstock intersection. I almost christened it "Dead Mayor's Curve." I understood it is now known as "Dead Men's Curve."

We were returning with six passengers in the car about 7 p. m., and there was an almost imperceptible drizzle, which froze at once. On rounding the curve, which is banked on the wrong side, without warning the car slid off the road. Fortunately, we were driving at only 15 miles per hour, and although when the car finally stopped sliding we were hanging over a 15 ft. embankment, the car running board dug into the ground and we were saved from turning over sideways.

The car was perched at such a perilous angle, however, that Mrs. Heiseleman and the other passengers were fearful of getting out of the car lest it topple over and down the bank. A householder, who lives at the brow of this dangerous hill, was waiting for us with his flashlight, because he knew his services would be needed. He told us that ours was the fourth car which either hit the telegraph pole or did a Souge Henne off the road and into the ditch. Fortunately, no one went down the bank. I am frank to tell you that in my opinion if we had been going two miles an hour faster we would have upset and spilled sideways down the bank, with probably serious results and possibly a fatal ending.

In the interest of public safety, may I again urge upon you the elimination of these dangerous curves between West Hurley and the south Boulevard intersection by the construction of more concrete highway. In the meantime, I recommend that guard rail of the steepest type be placed along this "Dead Men's Curve" and on slippery days and nights that a red blinker be placed there to protect the lives of our citizens.

Yours truly, C. J. HEISELEMAN, Mayor.

Red Cross Thanks Local Committee

A letter of thanks for work of the local Red Cross Roll Call Committee, recently received by Mrs. Frederick Holcomb, chairman, was made public today. The letter follows:

My dear Mrs. Holcomb: On January 3 we received at Headquarters the check from Mrs. Tappen, Treasurer, in the amount of $1,584.17 credited as the National apportionment of 3,993 members enrolled by the Ulster County Chapter for 1939.

I am writing to thank you and your associates in the Roll Call for the faithful service you have given another year. It is an added satisfaction to note the substantial increase in enrollment, bringing the membership of the Ulster County Chapter to its highest point over a period of years.

You will be interested to know that although reports are still not fully complete the present outlook indicates a generally increased membership over the country, close to 5,750,000, the highest over the past 18 years. The Ulster County Chapter has an important part in this national achievement.

With renewed appreciation to you and your able co-workers, I am
